A NEEDLESS FEAR.

THIS advertising committee of the commercial club, has met with the objection that the campaign which the subscription will make possible is likely to fit Albuquerque with indigent consumptives. This is a mighty poor excuse for refusal to participate in this big movement for a bigger Albuquerque. In the first place the men who carry out this advertising campaign will guard carefully every advertisement, and will see that it in no way that Albuquerque cannot care for those who are unable to care for themselves.

In the second place the very poor among the consumptives who come to Albuquerque come here as a last resort and upon the advice of physicians. The doctors of the country generally recognize New Mexico as the best of the western states in which to fight tuberculosis. The very poor will come to us anyway, as they are coming right now. It is a burden imposed by the climate which we have to bear and which we cannot escape. The advertising campaign will not increase it.

IT'S HARD TO BE GLOOMY.

PESSIMISTIC forecasts as to the ratio of exports to imports have been made by opponents of the reformist tariff. No doubt many of the prophets of gloom anticipated that the diminished protection would shut down American plants and compel us to buy our manufactures abroad, but the showing thus far is far from discouraging for the export trade imports by more than $100,000,000 and this in spite of the fact that our exports of foodstuffs have fallen off because home production does not keep pace with home consumption.

Our exports of manufactures are climbing steadily in competition with those of nations which have been exporting them for a century and who have the benefit of cheap labor. The greatest workshop of the world, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland continues to be our best customer. Germany, where manufacturing industry is intensively pursued, is another big buyer of American products and France and Canada and here their best buying as well as selling market.

TIME FOR ACTION.

IT IS NOT improbable that the time is near when Englishmen will summon their courage and put an end to the outrages committed in the name of female suffrage. The Englishman has suffered the disgrace of the outrages without much complaint. But now the persistent deprivations of the female bandits have begun to touch the Englishman's pocketbook and that he is not likely to endure for long.

Recent dispatches tell us that that portion of London which harvests the dollars of American tourists is showing much alarm over the closing of sightseeing shrines as a result of acts of vandalism committed by suffragettes. The manager of a hotel, half of whose guests come from the United States, said that the places now closed are those which Americans come half way across the world to see, and that, therefore, he looks for a heavy loss, arguing that if a number of tourists do not remain away they are almost certain to cut short their stay at points of interest.

It is also feared, according to this hotel manager, that the stories of suffragette outrages have been so painted in the United States that the timid tourists will give London a wide berth. As the suffragette bands have usually been placed at points to which tourists are attracted, the claim is made that fear of expatriation already has caused many American women to hasten through London without making their usual stops at them. The manager of a large tourist agency said that the activities of the suffragettes undoubtedly would lessen the influx of tourists from the continent during the Easter season.

London is also complaining about the payment of the costs of suffrage outrages, and efforts will be made to extend to England the measures already taken in Ireland, for losses accruing out of such outrages. When General McRae, the Home Secretary, in parliament confessed helplessness in the matter and invited suggestions, a voice from the Unionist side suggested reciprocity with South Africa by deporting the suffragettes there to exchange for the labor leaders recently sent from South Africa to England.

The newspapers in their editorials express intense indignation at the acts of vandalism of the suffragettes, but beyond suggesting that the perpetrators of the outrages be confined in insane asylums, they have no remedy to offer for the situation.

It will be interesting to note the comments of those newspapers referred to in James' effort to shift the blame. He was careful to name no specific newspaper. He said he had taken the newspaper reports as his source of information.

THE GOLF CLUB.

ORGANIZERS of the Albuquerque golf club have demonstrated that the best and quickest and most satisfactory way to secure a golf club and course is to get the course, arrange for its construction and let future details work themselves out. We have been making a country club project here for years; the project usually ending there. The organizers of the golf club are to be congratulated upon their simple, direct and reliable effective method of procedure.

The Albuquerque golf club does not propose to make itself an exclusive organization. Its membership rolls are to remain open to lovers of the

The "Holly Plan

The Woman's Civic club of Holly Color, desiring to help the girls of their community to become more efficient in the common duties of housekeeping, co-operates with the school the plan is as follows: The girls of the high school are divided into four classes, as indicated by the year of the work they are taking in high school. As many divisions are made of each class as necessary to assure best results. These divisions meet once or twice a week at the various homes in the city, and the girls cook, sew and do other household work such as sweeping and dusting, under the direct supervision of the teacher and the mistress of the house. A definite outline of the work to be done in each division is given so that she may have the material utensils necessary ready for use of the girls who do all the work and leave the house in the same condition as they come. It is washing and drying all dishes and putting them into their proper places.

In the latter part of the course six or seven of the girls prepare and serve a light luncheon to six or seven girls, the outlet of names being limited. The preparation and serving of the luncheon and the conversation and manners of the guests are carefully supervised by both the teacher and pupils.

Occasionally the various divisions visit the grocery store and learn how to order groceries, the meat market to distinguish the different cuts of meat, the furniture store to plan for the furnishing of a home, the hardware store to plan for the purchase of kitchen utensils, hardware, etc. All these appointments are carried along by the mothers in the houses who follow the outline the teacher leaves with the leader of the Civic club.

The advantages claimed for the plan are:

1. There is no need of expensive school apparatus.

2. The girls learn to cook and do house work in the home and with the material and equipment found there, and not in a domestic science kitchen with utensils much better than those found in the average home that they visit several homes during each day of instruction gives the added advantage of utilizing a variety of material under varying circumstances.

3. In every community there are housewives who are efficient in some other art of the domestic arts, such as the making of cakes, the baking of bread, the serving of lunches and dinners. Under this cooperative plan the school girls have the advantage of the various recipes and methods, also of the varied instruction the advocates of these recipes are able to give. Under the ordinary plan the domestic science teacher would be compelled to give out the exact knowledge in the class room under artificial conditions.

4. It is a practical method of bringing the school nearer the people and of keeping the mothers close to the girls in their school work.

Fashion Hints

Cherry red or jade green are lovely colors to use with white and silver brocade.

A novel crepe is promised considerable vogue—a crepe with piano satin surface.

The crystal beaded chiffon tunic seems to be as important as ever evening dresses.

A young girl's spring costume is made of a heavy top silk in a peculiar mustard-like tone.

One of the prettiest styles among new neck linings is the Meiji collar with fabric attached.

The all-black hat continues fashionable and does away with a multitude of sins in colors.

One of the new spring coats has no opening, full slips over the head like a peasant's blouse.

Entire sheath-shaped gowns are being made of jet spangles. Strange to say, they have the most fragile bodies of cultie blue.

Very striking checks are being used for skirts of costumes with the jackson navy made plain with checked trimmings.

Hats of plume form begin to be seen flat on top and elevated by a side brim; lambskin stretch tips are sometimes used underneath.

Printed designs are being applied to nearly everything of the silk sort for spring. The are even cushioned patterns and twining stripes.

Some of the rarest new silk creases are covered all over with crimson, saffron figures, even windmills and lots of handsewing appearing.

Flowers will be as important as ever on evening gowns—crests riveted with chiffon, single large silk flowers clusters of roses holding lace flowers.

CRYING FOR HELP.

Lots of it in Albuquerque but Growing Less.

The kidneys often cry for help. Not another organ in the whole body more delicately constructed;

Not one more important to health.

The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fall the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the frequent indications of kidney trouble.

It is often the kidneys' cry for help. Need it.

He then sat on a chair, to which he was bound. A file of ten soldiers advanced and fired on the instant.

The rebels fled immediately. The soldiers gave three cheers and all was over. Walker was but 36 years of age at the time.

Walker was a daring character and seemed to believe that his "star of destiny" had great things in store for him. Few adventurers of his time ever ran such a race of shortsighted and fatal folly. In 1833 he was the leader of an expedition which sailed from San Francisco with the intention of taking possession of Sonora, then a northern state of Mexico adjoining California. He landed at a place called La Punta where he met with little resistance.

He proclaimed an "Independent Republic of Lower California" and soon became master of the place where he was to be shot. Two soldiers with drawn swords advanced in front of him and three with fixed bayonets followed behind. In his right hand he carried a hat in his left a crucifix. It was here his great dream and his eventual life went out together.

The Forty Year Test.

An article must last at least 40 years to survive for a period of forty years.

"Champlain's Cough Remedy" was first offered to the public in 1872. From a small beginning it has grown in favor and popularity until it has attained a world-wide reputation. You will find nothing better for a cough or cold. Try it and you will understand why it is a favorite after a period of forty years.

It may be used for a cold for a period of forty years.

Early in the summer of 1855, Walker placed himself at the head of an expedition numbering about 60 men and proceeded to Nicaragua. There in a state of internal conflict, he landed at Roatán and marched to Leon to join the headquarters of the Nicaraguan Democratic army party.

Margaret W. Vandecrook, author of "The Loves of Ambrose," has been snared up in her mountain home at Delhi, N. Y., but is now back in New York City. Mrs. Vandecrook was the wife of the late John Vandecrook, president of the United Press association. She has written a number of girls' books, but "The Loves of Ambrose" is her first novel.

Dr. Joseph K. Dixon, author of "The Vanishing Race," has traveled a great deal in England and frequently with indignation the old and absurd legend that the English are behind us in their sense of humor.

He tells with gusto a story of a cockney repartee which pleased him.

"Where you going with all these women?" sailed out an acquaintance on the road.

"Goin' out to Burnham."

"Take my old gal along, will you?"
